Support of Woolever Urged By Mrs. Colvin in Addison Address

National Vice-President of W. C. T. U. States That She Personally Prompted Entry of Candor Man in Congressional Race—Denounces Administration For Pressure Toward Repeal—Upbraids Previous Administration for Failure to Enforce.

Members of the Addison W. C. T. U. were exhorted to support the Rev. Harry E. Woolever, candidate for the Republcan congressonal nomination in the 37th District, by Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, state president and national vice-president of the organization, speaking before approximately fifty members of the Addison union in the Grange Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

"Mr. Wooever knows legislative workins in Washington from eleven years of experience there," she said. "Because he is such an outstanding man I urged him to run for the nomination," Mrs. Colvin added in explaining that she herself was the first to urge upon him the urgent necessity of running as a dry candidate in this district. "Here is a man of sterling character," she went on to say, "one who has attaned distinction as a writer, journalist and analyst of affairs in Washington. He stands for the highest things because he is opposed to gambling and other things that tend to tear down nations. You cannot even link him with a divorce which seems to be a popular trend of late in the families of political leaders going to Washington."

Alluding in only a remote manner to the presence in the field of Dr. William E. Barron of Addison, Mrs. Colvin said; "I did not know that Dr. Barron was a candidate and I don't blame you, if you know him, that you vote for him. The other two candidates, however, are Wets. Certainly there is no question that Mr. Cole is a Wet, because his campaign two years ago was financed by the Wets. He may be awfully dry, but the fact remains that the Wets financed his campaign. With two Wets and two Drys, but with one Dry, Mr. Woolever, having a chance because he is wil lknown in all the counties, there is no reason for supporting a Wet. We ought to have a high type man to represent us, one interested not only in economic phases but in moral phases," she declared in urging the Rev. Woolever's candidacy.

At the beginning of her talk, Mrs. Colvin explained that in many communities the W. C. T. U. funcmen's group. She pointed out a tioned even more as a family organization than as a strictly women's organization. She told of a small community in a neighboring county in which the husbands and children of the families all attend the meetings and take part in various phases of the organization's work. "That is an ideal for the W. C. T. U. It should have a family influence." The speaker added that the W. C. T. U. affords an opportunity for the Christian women of the community and the state to become united without any reference

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

One of the most daring, carefully planned holdups the country has ever witnessed, was pulled in New York Tuesday when a gang of thugs took $427,000 from an armored bank car and escaped from Brooklyn by means of fast cars and speedboats. The bandits sprang into action as the armored car drew up in front of an ice plant to take a deposit, loiterers and pushcart men suddenly becoming desperadoes armed with pistols and machine guns that took immediate possession of the guards, transferred the money bags from the truck and fled too rapidly to be stopped. Police believe a new master crime mind engineered the stroke.

In a speech at Geneva this week, Governor Lehman expressed the hope that dairymen would mend rifts among themselves and factional differences to work together in unity. He maintained this unity was necessary to gain the confidence of the consuming public.

President Roosevelt announced Tuesday that southern farmers would be granted the right to borrow up to 12 cents a pound upon cotton held in their hands. Formerly the government has been loaning up to 10 cents per pound on cotton that is worth approximately 13 cents in the market. Threatened textile strikes are having a depressing effect upon cotton prices.

Body of Charles Bonham, Found In Canisteo River Friday Afternoon

Had Driven to Village From Farm Near Osceola Preceding Day — Retentive Memory Dir[illegible] Chief to Investigation Near River B[illegible] Monday.

The body of Charles W. Bonham, Woodhull farmer and World War veteran, was found in the Canisteo River about six o'clock last Friday afternoon by Chief of Police Elmer C. Bovee and Luke Brown. Mr. Bonham had apparently walked or fallen over the river bank some time during the preceding evening, as his car had been parked on Main street Thursday afternoon and was still there at [illegible] the body was found.

Chief Bo[illegible] [illegible]ce[illegible] Mr. Bonham walking up from Main street toward the Renken dairy plant on Thursday evening at about seven o'clock. Late the following afternoon he was advised by Harry Sanford that a truck owned by Charles Bonham had been parked on the street since the preceding day and that Mr. Bonham's son together with a hired man, Dean Darling, had spent the entire night in the truck awaiting Mr. Bonham's return. With this information and recalling that he had seen Mr. Bonham the night before, the chief immediately started an investigation in the vicinity of the Renken dairy plant and, after a time, discovered footprints on the river bank.

Convinced that this clue provided a solution to the matter, he called in Luke Brown to assist and together in Mr. Brown's boat they started dragging a nearby portion of the river. Papers were soon discovered, caught in some weeds near the top of the water, which definitely connected the name of Mr. Bonham with a river tragedy.

In addition to his children, Mr. Bonham is survived by his mother, Mrs. Emma Bonham; three brothers, Chester and George of Woodhull, and Guy Bonrah of Johnson City; also three sisters, Miss Sally Bonham of New York City; Mrs. Rockwell Herbert and Mrs. Leroy Hoagland of Elkland.

The funeral was held at the home of Mrs. Lettie Newman, mother-in-law of the deceased man, in Woodhull, Monday afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. Jesse Wilson, paston of the Woodhull M. E. "We Are All Lobbyists" Says Barron, Apologizing To Woolever

Congressional Rival Objects To Addison Candidate's Reference as "Washington Lobbyist"—"Lobbyist in a Good Cause is an Honorable Calling," Doctor Retorts—Contends it is Too Late for Campbell to Capitalize on Bank Issue.

"I desire at this time to apologize to one of my opponents, the Rev. Woolever, for the statement I recently made that he had been a Washington lobbyist", declared Dr. William E. Barron, candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination in the 37th District, speaking at Elmira last Wednesday night.

"I had seen the reference to the Rev. Woolever as a lobbyist in some current publication", he added, "but I had failed to see the later statement, issued by the Associated Press, apologizing for the reference. My attention was first called to the matter a day or two ago when I received a telegram from the Rev. Woolever's stage manager, field agent, beg pardon, campaign manager. I replied to the effect that a lobbyist in a good cause is an honorable calling". Then turning toward his three opponents in the race for the Congressional nomination, all seated on the platform behind him. Dr. Barron said, "You are all lobbyists, we are all lobbyists, in a good cause. Why should anyone take offense to my reference when none was intended."

Speaking pointedly at the various candidates and the issue at stake in the campaign, he continued, "Mr. Cole has confessed that he does not know where he stands on the problems of the day of what he would do in the event that he should be elected to the seat in Congress. He is in the race, apparently

Attend International Newspaper Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Miller were in Rochester Tuesday attending the Centennial Exposition. The date was International Newspaper Day, editors and their wives being guests of the city at a luncheon and exhibition of Rochester's colorful pageant, "A Century on Parade". The Addison people were doubly fortunate to occupy a box with Edward Hugerford, author of the pageant, who told them many of the "inside" details of the spectacle known only by the producers. Mr. Hugerford was also the author of the pageant, "March of Progress" given at the Chicago Exposition.

The Rochester pageant depicts many of the outstanding events in the city's history including the famous leap of Dan Patch over Genesee Falls, the visit of Lafayette, the stirring scenes as the Erie Canal was opened, and the coming of the railroad. Exact replicas of the first engines to steam into Rochester, pulled their strings of ancient "coaches" across the stage.

DEMOCRATS AND RURAL THOUGHT

Sentiment for revolutionary changes in national life find far less following in rural districts than in metropolitan areas. This is true because life in the cities is fluid, transitory and unreal, while on the farm and in the American village people are more solid in their opinion, less apt to be swayed by emotional disturbances that sweep through the mob-like centers of population.

In the country citizens are closely attached to tangible property such as their farms, their village homes, stores, mills and banks. Ownership of real estate through decades has impressed the subconscious mind of the suburbanite with the permanence of possessions, their importance to posterity and the proper relationship between citizen and state. Through generations the rural dweller has recognized the fact that ownership of property carries with it the responsibility of con- [illegible] through taxes to government support. [illegible] farmer and villager has given more [illegible] proper functioning of government and [illegible]ip to himself, than has the average [illegible] lives in a rented flat, flits from [illegible]d eats food that he almost never [illegible]ing state.

[illegible]ws through a life-time of taxpay- [illegible]im rests a part of the responsi- [illegible]ment; else there will be no roads [illegible] his children. The other does not [illegible]ecognize the tax portion going out [illegible]oney, and comes to regard sc[illegible] protection and the like as n[illegible] or overn[illegible]nt that are due him. It is e[illegible] him to reach the point of view that government is a paternal affair that owes everyone a living.

The preponderance of population in our great cities has made possible the great swing to the left on which the New Deal has already carried us. The various panaceas prescribed by the Administration's Intellectuals were avidly snapped up by the mass of city dwellers of middle and lower class; people who have never been real estate owners and consequently were never tax conscious. People believing in the paternalism of government hold little thought for responsibility of public debts, and they readily shouted for a program aimed squarely to fit their mood. Meanwhile the unexpressive ruralite has plugged along for months, hoping the revolutionary features introduced so rapidly would eventually give place to saner programs to re-establish age-old standards of property rights.

As originally drawn the plans of the New Deal were laid down along party lines. They were measures introduced by the Administration in the name of the Democratic party which had won an overwhelming victory at the polls. But of late large numbers of Democrats have begun to distrust the advisability of many New Deal features, and have silenced their support to align, in thought at least, with the rural population that has never accepted the theory of annihilation of individualism.

The fluid population of the cities will continue to shout for the present Administration just as long as it sees personal benefits showered by a paternal government. The time is rapidly approaching, however, when the national debt will mount too high for continued profligate spending of borrowed funds. Then the fluid population will be faced with an impasse which may make it more dangerous than vocal.

The one coalition that can save this situation before it is too late, would be an alignment of solid thinking Democrats, like Glass of Virginia, with the ruralites and conservative Republicans who believe in c-nstitutional property rights.

It is a truly critical situation. President Roosevelt's latest speeches have shown him to be more a New Dealist than a Democrat. His original party supporters should weigh that fact well.

"STATEISM" DANGERS

The capital city's coterie of Brain Trusters who are accustomed to hearing their views lauded by some so-called intellectuals were called sharply to task when Dr. Robert A. Millikan, president of the California Institute of Technology, declared in a radio address that the nation's worst enemies are the "political philosophers and sociologists, some of them in high places", who are promoting a system of what he called "Stateism."

"Some of them call it communism, some socialism, some somethng else, but I will use the broader term Stateism to include this whole tendency toward the government's ownership and operation of everything", said the internationally known scientist. He added that "this whole movement weakens self-reliance, discourages private initiative, diminishes opportunity, stimulates bonus marches, veterans' rackets, even teachers' Federal lobbies (I admit it with shame)."

Dr. Millikan said the present efforts of political philosophers in high places are directed toward pushing men back "into the soft bosom of the State", and asserted that "this decay of men is far and away the most insidious menace to realization of the American dream." He described the "American dream" as the hope that this country may always remain a land of freedom and opportunity.

"Freedom of speech and of the press are our most priceless heritage, to be most sacredly guarded", said the distinguished scientist-educator. "In many parts of the world today the tendency to return to bullet government is so strong that there is real danger that we are being infected by it." He struck hard at government competition with private industry, saying:

"I regard the man who urges the extension of the powers of the State into the operative fields, which private initiative can and will handle equally well or better, as the enemy of free government—the most pernicious influence in American life today."

THE STATE BUDGET

While the federal government is piling up the biggest debt in history, peacetime or war, the state of New York is only a few steps behind in the current spending spree. The deficit for the current year was nearly sixty-seven and one-half millions, with positive indications it will reach ninety-five million dollars by July 1, 1935. This approaches quite close to the deficit handed over by Governor Roosevelt when he left office January 1, 1933, and is a far cry from the balanced budget Mr. Lehman had promised the people of the state of New York.

Senator Fearon, minority leader of the Senate, blames the deficit upon the erroneous estimate of the State Comptroller. The latter estimated tax receipts for the year would be $292,244,101, whereas they actually were $258,000,000 last year, with taxes in effect that have since been cancelled. Why the Governor should believe more taxes would be collected this year, from less sources, is a mystery pretty hard to fathom. In any event the state is getting farther and farther away from a balanced budget every twenty-four hours in the year.

It is the constitutional duty of the Governor to present a balanced budget to the state legislature for adoption. A balanced budget, however, means spending no more than is received, and the impasse has now been reached of finding any new sources of tax revenue. So many hands have been drawing at the supply, the tax cow is all but dried up. That being the case the only sound business alternative, is to curtail state expenditures.

There are too many state officials running around in big, expensive automobiles. There are too many government paid chauffeurs at the beck and call of employes of the state government. There is too much extravagance in Albany from the top to bottom of the political heap. It's time Mr. John Taxpayer became vocal and informed the Governor and the Legislators that the way to balance the budget is downward. Less spending and more efficiency is the proper way of making income stretch to equal outgo, in business or government.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

May Day Parade in New York—The workers looked well fed and well dressed. They were well behaved, happy looking—singing and joking; but their slogans and banners were destructive. Down with this, that and the other!

Thousands of school boys and girls who had no conception of values, savings, employment, property rights as guaranted by our Constitution —led by theorists, dreamers and avowed destructionists—had been fed on the poison that the man who had [illegible]ed and acquired property, must [illegible]ave wrun[illegible] [illegible]m a helpless people.

But consider the comedy of it — they were marching and denouncing capital and savings and constitutional rights by the grace of the very system they wished to destroy. Hundreds of policemen lined the streets to see that they were protected in the full exercise of their rights under our Constitution, as well as to see that they did not violate the same Constitutional rights of other citizens.

Again the humor of the situation was apparent when it was necessary to separate the socialist and communist parades to prevent clashes between them if they met.

Neither of the groups would live in countries where socialism and communism now reign supreme, because they could not enjoy the liberties of self expression guaranteed them by the United States Constitution and the so-called capitalistic system.

In other words, the socialists and communists can't get along with each other, they like to make believe that they are oppressed in the country that harbors and protects them and they don't want to go and live in the nations that have adopted the views they advocate here, because in those nations they would be wiped out like flies if they raised their voices against the government policies.

It is high time that we emphasize the blessings that our Constitution offers to United States citizens and advise those who do not like that brand of liberty to move to the happy hunting grounds where their ideals are now established.

Legislature Still Hangs on— Everybody Deserves a Rest

Albany, August 21—The taxpayers of the state may well hope, as the legislators of both parties surely will, that Governor Lehman, having broken all records by calling four special sessions of the Legislature in less than two years, will now be satisfied. The session which began July 10 was called at request of former Governor Smith, head of the New York City Charter Revision Committee, for a single purpose—to propose a change in the State Constitution. That might have been done in a day or so. But Governor Lehman sent in message after message, suggesting a score of other things, opened the door wide, and as a result some 300 bills were introduced. The cost to the taxpayers was about $3500 per day, or a total of $150,000 for clerk hire, etc. The lawmakers get no pay for an extra session.

Only Rolls Royce for These

The astonishing revelation of the Hewitt committee as to the use and abuse of State-owned automobiles by public officials and employees, many of whom do not require them an hour a month in performing their duties, do not seem to have put any curb upon the ambitions of those who have jobs with the state, elective or otherwise. This was evident when a representative of the Associated Press sat in the other day with an official who was discussing a recent experience. The official told of two department heads who made a terrible fuss when they learned the state had decided to supply them with a certain make of automobile when they wanted a larger and more expensive car.

One Official Sees the Light

Quite evidently the official who was telling the story is one of those who have views on the abuse in question, for he wound up his story thus: "Can you imagine any one with nerve enough to kick when the state is offering to buy him a new $1,500 car, furnish him with a chauffeur and pay all expenses of the machine?" He added that the two department heads indignantly refused to accept the cars the state was going to buy for them, and are still using their old ones. "So the state saves money after all", he said. Of course a thousand or so apiece on a few hundred cars would not break the great State of New York, but the spirit shown by the two departments heads helps to explain why the state has been many millions in the red for the past several years.

May Let Them Furnish Their Own

Judging from corridor gassip, it will not be surprising if one of these times legislation is introduced which will eliminate state cars, except, perhaps moderately priced and serviceable ones for game wardens, traveling inspectors and others who need them continuously, and eliminate state-paid chauffeurs altogether. This would undoubtedly result in a considerable saving. More than that, it would put an end to what has been a great scandal for several years. The spectacle of a legislator or official being driven to his hotel three blocks from the Capitol in a $4000 Lincoln by a state-paid chauffeur cancels volumes of talk about economy. It would probably be conducive to much more harmony all around if each state official received so much and "found himself", as do people in other occupations.

They Don't Know Long Island

Evidently the agricultural experts in charge of the AAA down in Washington never heard of Long Island's most famous product, aside from the succulent Blue Point. Anyhow, when North Carolina farmers whose cotton and tobacco crops were curtailed by government order planted potatoes instead, and the AAA obligingly bought the potatoes to distribute to the unemployed, it sent carloads of them to Nassau and Suffolk counties, while Long Island potatoes, finest in the world, were quoted at 30c a bushel, and the growers were having sufficient difficulty in finding a market without any importations.

Another Nuisance Law

There seems to be no difference of opinion, in or out of Albany, concerning the act of 1933 charging fees for State reports, printed documents, blanks, etc. All agree that it is a genuine nuisance—at least as now administrated. A bill repealing the law was introduced in both houses at the regular session this year. It passed the Assembly, and was killed in the Democratic Senate for political reasons—it was one of the Governor's recommendations in his message of 1933 for helping to pay off the deficit of $114,000,000 left by his predecessor.

Financial Return Trivial

People object to again paying for what they have already paid for in taxes. They do not know which department to send to for the document they want. They feel that a wider dissemination of information about the state's business is needed, not a narrower, as must result from this system. If the Governor still insists that these charges be retained, there is a widespread sentiment that the matter should be handled in a business-like manner, with a complete list of publications and prices available to the public and a single source from which the documents may be ordered.

Goldman Gets Judicial Plum

In the year 1907, the Republicans being then in power in state and nation, steps were taken to remove the postmastership of New York City from the realm of political spoils. Edward M. Morgan, who had spent many years in the postal service and demonstrated his fitness, was appointed to the position. He kept it until his death, when John J. Kiely, in the service since 1885, and thoroughly trained and capable, was promoted to the position. Neither was a political appointment. In 1936 Mr. Kiely would have retired. But Jobmaster Farley could not wait. He has pushed into the position Albert Goldman, a political protege of Boss Flynn of the Bronx, with the announcement that Mr. Goldman will be asked to pass the necessary civil service examination some time this fall. The plum is the juiciest one in the Postal Department, with a salary of $12,000 a year.

WASHINGTON SNAP-SHOTS

Presumably President Roosevelt took himself away for a nice rest and vacation. But the truth is, according to the best informed sources that he had some serious thinking to do and there was no better place to do it than aboard a battleship where no one dared to disturb him. That was the reason not even his secretaries, who are long-standing friends, went along. Rudolph Forster, chief clerk of the White House for years and years, can go for days without speaking unless spoken to, and enjoy it.

The story goes that the President was anxious to consider the past and proposed work of his Administration like the plantation worker considered the moon—from a distance. The real import of these reports is that the President has gone so far on his travels that he simply "can't see" some of his appointees and advisers any longer. If true, and he has not changed his mind, that means some of the New Dealers must vacate about the time Mr. Roosevelt returns.

It takes a broad perspective and perhaps a change in advisers to see a way through the bumps that the present crop of "thinkers" has provided for the Administration. Just taking a few of the conflicting movements at random gives you an idea of the problem. Labor was permitted to force production costs so high that all the aid given the farmer has left the party little changed. Question, rationalize the N. R. A. and labor activities or keep dumping more to the farmer to help him catch up. Billions have been added to the public debt, running it to a new high, and the only known method for liquidating a debt is taxation, yet new ideas for government competition with private industries are being invented daily, including governmental operation of factories.

the World War, Spanish War and even of the Civil War, to organize into political groups throughout the country." Mr. Brooks continued to say, "The time has come when every Veteran must realize that through the ballot the Veteran may counter the insidious activity of the selfish money groups. We have seen the tragic results of Veteran cuts; men who offered their lives to the country forced to desperate measures — in some cases suicide. Women and orphan dependents of soldiers have been denied their just due and all under excuse of Economy.

"Today the Veterans of the 37th District propose that the member of Congress to be elected shall make known his specific position in the controversy which has been forced upon the Veteran. The Veteran will not tolerate being ignored in favor of big business, nor will he give his support to a Candidate who is fearful of making known his position with respect to Veteran problems.

"The Veteran feels that the widows and orphans of the World War must be justly treated in harmony with the benefits conferred upon dependents of the earlier wars. He feels that the Bonus problem has been a political football long enough and should be now settled. The Veteran has felt that the plan sponsored by General Frank T. Hines. Administrator of Veterans Affairs, for a uniform pension act designed for uniform treatment of all wars should be enacted at once. The Veteran of the 37th District particularly is leading the fight for a modern building and equipment for a hospital at the Bath Veterans Home to replace the fire-hazard existent there. This is the four-point program of our Association.

"Willson R. Campbell, candidate for Congress, has unqualifiedly endorsed our program. The other candidates have declined to commit themselves. The Association then has, by resolution, undertaken to assist Mr. Campbell in his campaign for the Republican nomination on a strictly non-partisan basis. In a few days district leaders will be announced in every voting district in the county with assurance that the officers and members of the Board of Directors of this Association will give every assistance in aggressively getting out the vote for the canddate who believes in the program which has been outlined."

Dr. Woodbury To Seek Post on State Committee

Coincident with announcement from Guy W. Cheney of Corning that he would not be a candidate for re-election as Republican state committeeman from the first assembly district came announcement that the position would be sought by Dr. E. Walter Woodbury of Bath.

Dr. Woodbury has been active in politics for an extended period and in his announcement disclosed that he had attended every Republican state convention in the past twenty years. He has served two terms as village trustee at Bath, but apart from that has not held public office. Last fall he was candidate for the county chairmanship but withdrew in favor of J. C. Latham of Canisteo.

In addition to political activities, Dr. Woodbury has been interested in civic affairs at Bath, having served for some time as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, president of the Rotary Club and director of the country club . His committee on vacancies consists of Mrs. Clara Smith of Bath, Assemblyman Wilson Messer, Leslie Kimble, Leland B. Bryan of Corning, Gratton Barber and Arthur Hamilton of Bath.

Home Bureau Committees Make Plans For Fair

Mrs. Scott has had a great deal of experience in assisting with exhibits at both county and state fairs and she was able to give valuable assistance. The general Fair committee which arranged the conference includes: Mrs. Arthur Merritt of Kanona, Mrs. H. S. Sirrine and Mrs. U. S. Arland of Hammondsport. Committees from the local units exhibiting who attended the meeting were: Kanona, Mrs. L. D. Clark, Mrs. Jay Kniffin and Mrs. Leo Hamblin. This group will show the method of refinishing furniture as taught by the Home Bureau. The Avoca committee is composed of Mrs. Fred Ives, Mrs. A. J. Connor and Mrs. George Conklin and they will exhibit making of lamp shades. The Bradford committee was unable to attend this meeting but their group plans to show methods of reseating chairs.

Although German citizens elected Hitler to the presidency by a 38 million vote, the general election last Sunday showed a decline in the Dictator's popularity. The nation's restive labor picture this week reveals a number of great strikes threatened. The most serious is the possible walk-out of the textile workers, affecting 825,000 people. All is quiet at the plants of the Aluminum Company, shut down by strikes, but striking drivers of the Chicago Motor Coach Co. are accused of dealing with communists in the attempt of spreading the movement to other transportation workers. The Federal Department of Labor reported last month a drop in employment of 359,000 men and over ten million dollars in payrolls.

Senator Huey Long wove a spell of magic over Louisianna legislators last week, inducing them to confer on his machine the broadest powers of military and political control ever held in the state. Going into the legislative halls the Kingfish browbeat senators and representatives into voting the power he asked, designed to crush his political rival, Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans. Fists flew and disorder was rampant as Huey usurped power over courts, national guard and elections in one of the most disgraceful pervesions of justice ever perpetrated on ths continent.

H. G. Harrison Weds in Idaho

Former Addison Man United in Marriage to Mrs. Peyton at Coeur d'Alene—Both Members of Prominent Families — To Reside in Omaha.

Addison friends of Howard G. Harrison, former resident here, will be interested to read of his marriage at Coeur d'Alene, Idaha, to Mrs. Avery Peyton. The following is reprinted from a daily newspaper in that region:

In the Presbyterian Church in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, today at noon, will take place the marriage of Mrs. Avery Peyton, daughter of Mrs. A. G. Avery of Spokane and the late Judge Avery, to Howard G. Harrison of Omaha, Neb.

Members of the two families, with a small group of intimate friends, will be present at the ceremony, which will be read by the Rev. R. J. Hunter, pastor of the church. The bride will wear a gown of chartreuse crepe with cape, and a black velvet hat. There will be no attendants.

Mr. Harrison and his bride are going to Chicago and will make their home in Omaha, where he is manager of the Omaha branch, mortgage loan department of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Newark, N. J.

News of the marriage came as a distinct surprise in social circles, where Mrs. Peyton and Mr. Harrison have been prominently identified. Mr. Harrison, who was in business in Spokane for a number of years before going to Omaha, has been back at intervals for business connections as well as to renew friendships here.

He arrived last Saturday, motoring west with his daughter, Miss Louise, and son, William. The young people will return east by motor, going by way of Yellowstone Park. Their mother, the late Mrs. H. G. Harrison, was the former Miss Fie Day, daughter of Mrs. William T. Day of California and the late W. T. Day.

As Ruth Avery, today's bride was one of the most popular girls in society. She has traveled abroad, has taken part in musical affairs both here and in Redlands, Cal., giving freely of her artistic talents through her fine voice. She has appeared in presentations of the Junior League. Judge Avery, a one time member of the law firm of Post, Avery and Higgins, was an eminent jurist, who held many positions and offices of distinction. As one of the outstanding lawyers of the state, Judge Avery was president of the Washington State Bar Association and president of the Spokane County Bar Association. Unemployment Insurance Is Opposed By Students

New York — Any program of unemployment insurance undertaken by the United States Government will prove to be a costly and difficult social experiment, it was declared in the summary of a 310 page report on "The Employment Exchange Service of Great Britan," made public by Industrial Relations Counselors, Inc.

The board of trustees of the organization includes the Rev. Raymond B. Fosdick, Cyrus McCormick, Jr., John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, and Owen D. Young.

The group said it considered its studies 'especially timely in the light of President Roosevelt's announcement that broad social insurance program is to be developed.

Veterans' Service Aids Placement

Ex-Service Men in Need of Employment Urged to Maintain Contact With County Officer—Many Positions Call For Veterans' Placement.

The Veterans' Placement Service has been established in New York State in accordance with the terms of the Wagner-Peyser Act, according to a recent announcement by Elmer C. Bovee, commander of Williams-Greengrass Post, No. 730, American Legion.

The responsibilities of the Veterans' Placement representative are to supervise the placement of veterans throughout the state and as instructed by the United States Employment Service "to assure that there be definite attention to the registration and placement of veterans" in each city and county, where an office of the New York State Re-employment Service is located, the manager of that office or another designated employee is directly responsible for the placement of the veterans in that locality.

Commander Bovee emphasizes that every ex-service man desirous of procuring work should be registered at the organized Employment Office of his county. Following a proper registration the veterans' applications are placed in the files of the local Employment Office in such a manner that they may be found easily. Upon receiving an order for workers requiring veterans' preference, the veterans' applications are first consulted. The men whose applications show them to be best fitted for the job are referred to the employer. No local employment office's manager have any responsibility over the selections finally made by the employer.

When a veterans' preference project is to be operated by union labor, the Employment Service is seldom requested to supply labor. Instead the contractor and the local union have a working agreement and are permitted to operate according to this agreement on PWA projects. They must, however, give preference to men with dependents and confine their activities to workers residing in the town or county in which the project is being constructed.

The Veterans' Placement Service is designed to render every possible assistance to all honorably discharged veterans. It can do so best by having the unqualified cooperation of all veterans. The individual veteran applicant must also co-operate by keeping the local employment office advised of all changes of address, availability for work, etc.

To avoid misunderstanding, the definition of "ex-service men with dependents is given as follows by the Public Works Administration:

"The term 'ex-service man' means men who have served in the Army, Navy or with the Marines of the United States and have been honorably discharged. The ex-service men who are to be preferred are those with dependents. 'Dependents' are those for whom the ex-service men are required by law to provide".

Sterling Cole Lashes Rivals

Congressional Candidate Gives Militant Talk at Elmira—Does Not Propose to "Merely Take it on the Chin"—Is Better Qualified for Office, He Says.

W. Sterling Cole, of Bath, candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination, struck out at his opponents in a militant talk at Elmira last Thursday night. Mr. Cole's talk was given before the Elmira Republican Club in the presence of his three rivals, Willson Campbell of Bath, Dr. William E. Barron and the Rev. Woolever of Candor, each of whom also addressed the gathering from the same platform.

After also presenting his ideas on the issues of the campaign, Mr. Cole said in effect that he was being referred to by his opponents as the boy candidate, and that he did not propose to stand quietly by and merely "take it on the chin"; that in education and experience he was the equal, if not the superior of his opponents and better qualified than they to fill the duties of congressman He said that one of his opponents, (later he said he meant Mr. Campbell) had had the opportunity and had been urged to run for the nomination two years ago but that he had evidently concluded that he could not win and had therefore not run; whereas he, Mr. Cole, had made the effort and had nearly been successful. Mr. Cole then said that another of the candidates (whom he stated later to be Dr. Woolever) is not even enrolled as a Republican or in any other party, and therefore cannot vote in the primary election in which he is a candidate for a party nomination and that this other candidate did not vote in the primary two years ago.

Children need MILK as Flowers need rain

● Doctors urge that you don't neglect to give your child this healthful and inexpensive food daily.

YOUR child's biggest job is the business of growing. Eat and romp and eat. A ten-year-old boy needs nearly as much food as a grown person!

A quart of milk a day furnishes a full third of the energy that a normal growing child needs. Milk provides materials to build little muscles, and to help heal cuts and bruises. It builds strong bones and sound teeth, and also furnishes valuable vitamins.

No other single food can do your child so much good as milk. It provides practically all of the food-elements the human body needs—in the same proportions in which they occur in the body itself! Recognized as the most nearly complete food, it is also one of the least expensive.

Drink it yourself! (You need at least a pint daily.) Its balanced nourishment will give you energy and vitality, and help keep you at the peak of health. Order an extra quart tomorrow. Set a glassful at each place on the table. Use it in your cooking. It costs so little for what it brings, in better health and brighter days!

Drink more Milk: IT'S GOOD FOR YOU

THIS ADVERTISEMENT IS PREPARED AND INSERTED BY AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

To build better bodies for its citizens of all ages and classes; to help prevent and correct widespread malnutrition among children, the State of New York is urging increased consumption of fresh milk. Because both the public health and the State's leading industry will be served thereby, this effort is sponsored by the Governor and the Legislature. It is under the direction of the Department of Agriculture and Markets and all expenses of this campaign are borne by the milk industry. The cost of milk to the public will not be increased on this account.

Outcome of Guessing Contest Emphasizes The Need of Records

The results of the production guessing contest conducted at the recent dairy field day demonstrates the difficulty of estimating the value of dairy cows.

Of the several hundred who examined the four cows used in this demonstration, only two placed the cattle in the right order. More than ninety per cent gave the best cow third and fourth place. Only two put her at the head of the list. All of which proves that there is only one way to know the actual production of a dairy cow and that is to keep records.

Ralph Decker of Addison won first place in the production guessing contest with K. M. Bennett of Howard a close second. Others who made a good score and were awarded prizes are Ernest Miller of Hornell; S. P. Smith of Prattsburg; Lynn Saxton, Cameron Mills; Verne D. Parker, Avoca; P. H. Boyd, Woodhull; Robert Gallagher, Hammondsport; E. E. Paddock, Pulteney; Woodrow Wright of Campbell; V. B. Pratt of Prattsburg and Rex Starr of Thurston.

The contest was one of the features of the dairy field day program organized by the farm bureau and held near Addison on August 11.

Notables Of Steuben County

THOMAS SHANNON, Att'y of Bath and Sec'y of Bar Asso.

In this series of articles, it is interesting to include the members of the legal fraternity. They constitute a tower of strength in a place like Steuben County, which has so many divers interests that the people naturally run counter at times and bring each other up with a quick, sharp turn in the courts. Thomas Shannon is a splendid example of lawyer who combines active participation in legal work with a keen interest in the progress and affairs of his community. He therefore has a personality that is distinctly representative of the best kind of citizen. Attorney Shannon's influence in the cause of good government is exercised with that judicious energy that is effective without ever becoming blatant. The determination and vision that directed his course toward the law continues to be a pronounced characteristic with Attorney Shannon. Besides, he is a good citizen and his participation in local activities is a source of inspiration and comfort to the business and governing agencies of this community.

JUDGE JOHN C. WHEELER, Surrogate of Steuben Co.

The office of Surrogate in a county the size and importance of Steuben County calls for abilities, inherent and acquired, of a peculiar nature. Peculiar in the sense of being possessed by only too few men drafted into public service. To pass judgement on legal tangles where fortunes are offtimes at stake in real estate holdings and estates, required a judge of high mentality and keen discernment whose background of legal training has been proved to be expert and broad. Add to this a fairness of mind and you come somewhere near to the requirements of an ideal surrogate. It is a hard order to fill but in Judge John C. Wheeler we have an example of such a man and Steuben County has good reason for being gratified with that fact. Surrogate Wheeler has shown himself to be both progressive and constructive in his every action. The uniform fairness of his decisions is something that is generally conceded and his civic spirited attude toward the community is something else again to be admired. Judge Wheeler is indeed a most worthy man of affairs and a valued citizen.

DR. J. M. SHUMWAY, Health Officer of Painted Post

The medical profession is credited, and justly so, as being one of the greatest factors in the advancement of civilization. Probably no other science has progressed and developed so rapidly, considering the immense amount of research work that has been required. No mention of the prominent physicians of Steuben County can be complete without more than a passing review of the accomplishments of Dr. J. M. Shumway who is health officer of Painted Post. He has achieved that success and prominence that always accompanies any man whose achievements are large in the promulgation of health. But aside from his wealth of experience and his advanced technical knowledge, he is also endowed with that sympathy and understanding of human kind that is a large factor in the results attained. Dr. Shumway in other words, is one of those well balanced physicians who have succeeded by virtue of their talents and besides he is one of the most public spirited men in Steuben County. Dr. Shumway is well known in Addison, having lived there several years, and in Steuben County and we are indeed glad to mention him in this special feature column.

JAMES S. DRAKE, JR., County Attorney of Steuben Co.

The history of our country from the beginning, shows that many of the keenest minds of every generation, have been attracted to the legal profession. This is, perhaps, a natural condition, since in that field exists the greatest opportunity for the exercise of intelligence and talents in the service of mankind. Whatever may be the chief factor contributing to this condition, it is an established fact that in mentioning the names of a given number of people who are entitled to classification as the most useful citizens of the county, the members of the legal fraternity loom large. Among the members of the Steuben County Bar, who by their achievements are entitled to more than ordinary reckoning, is James S. Drake, Jr., County Attorney. Broad of vision, keen, forceful and energetic, Attorney Drake has advanced to his profession by the constant pursuit of those ideals which actuated the efforts of the early lawyers of the province in founding the bar of the commonwealth. It is such useful men of affairs who are factors to be reckoned with in the advance of our community.

WILSON MESSER, Assemblyman, Corning

If the public officials who have obtained political preferment were possessed of the quality of statesmanship that is true of Wilson Messer of Corning, our present Assemblyman, the affairs of state and nation would be much improved. The call has always been for men of affairs to serve in the legislative halls, but those who are really qualified are not met with at every street corner. In consequence it came as a distinct form of gratification when Mr. Messer was elected to his present post which he fills so ably. The fact that he is administering this office so creditably routs the oft repeated statement the the people do not know what they want and it also contradicts the frequent lament that the best of men will not accept public office when called upon to serve. Mr. Messer is the kind of man we like to talk about because he is happiest when he is best serving his community and that is public spiritedness of the highest character. The constructive service of men like Mr. Messer is the kind that will endure and the character of sincere public spirited endeavor has brought him the esteem of the entire community. Men like Mr. Messer are citizens worthy of commendation.

WILLSON R. CAMPBELL, Rep. Cand. for Congressional Nomi.

There has been considerable enthusiasm manifested over the candidacy of Willson R. Campbell for the Congressional Nomination in the 37th District. He is ably fitted for this important office by training and experience and his selection is generally conceded as being a very wise one on the part of the faction he has so long represented. Mr. Campbell is by no means an unknown quantity, because he has been active in the county for many years and all his actions, politically or otherwise, have been marked by honesty of purpose and success. Few, if any, have a firmer hold on the affections of the public. Mr. Campbell not only holds their friendship, but their respect and confidence as well. It is therefore fitting indeed that he should have been chosen for this honor and it goes without saying that his administration would be of a constructive and progressive character that would stamp him indelibly as a man to be both admired and reckoned with. Mr. Campbell is indeed one candidate who on the strength of his own record as a popular citizen of large capabilities, should command the support of all friends of good government. He is a man of whom Steuben County has a right to be proud.

ELISHA E. PADDOCK, Comm. of Elections of Steuben Co.

The responsibilities of the office of Commissioner of Elections in Steuben County require the technic of masterly direction and execution. When Elisha E. Paddock was placed in this office, his friends and associates felt that this was indeed an excellent selection; but more than that, the entire community felt the same way about it and ever since the day he was inducted in office, Mr. Paddock has been magnificently proving that they were right. In saying that, we are not just trying to be nice to a man for whom we have such high esteem and respect but, we are stating a fact that no sensible person would care to dispute and feel that he is doing it conscientiously. He has shown his ability to fulfill the duties of the office to the mutual advantage of all and in doing that he has also shown his commendable disposition to gauge his every action along channels of constructiveness that will be of benefit to the greatest number of citizens of this community. In Steuben County, no man has been a better public official or citizen and we are glad to mention him in this special feature column.

DR. E. WALTER WOODBURY, Rep. Cand. for State Comm.

Perhaps never before in the history of the country have the people given so much thought to the caliber of the men who would hold public office as well as their proved personal attributes and capabilities that would indicate how well they would hold their respective offices after being elected. This is as true of the people of Steuben County as it is of the rest of the nation. Dr. E. Walter Woodbury's constructive administration of his own private business endeavors, has gained him hearty regard and the respect of his colleagues, because his career as a citizen has been helpful and conducted in a sound and businesslike manner. He has been indefatigable in his efforts to give the interests o fhis fellow citizens, the best that is in him and his policies have been so manifestly honest and above board, that he has won the plaudits o fall, regardless of partisanship. It is such men who meet with favor at election time, for the day has passed when men are selected for office as a personal favor. Candidates today must prove their mettle and ability to gain such favor and Dr. Woodbury has surely done this without the peradventure of a doubt.

WALTER M. GOFF, Chairman of Board of Supervisors

America is not only the "Land of the Free" but it is one spot under the sun where an ambitious man may attain to any heights, if he is ready to take his opportunities as he finds them and conscentiously make the most of them. A splendid example is Walter M. Goff who has so much to do with making Steuben County the splendidly managed community it is today. Efficiency and economy of operation and a strict regard to the interests of the people, have made Mr. Goff's administration one that is commendably outstanding. Both the public at large as well as his constituents, highly regard his service and show him the greatest respect and confidence. Walter M. Goff is Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Steuuben County, and a public official of which the people may well feel proud, for it is gratifying to have such a conscientious and hardworking man in office. During his association with this office, he has shown a constructive trend of mind that has offtimes elicited the remark that "he s ndeed the knd of office holder any community needs." His career is pointed to as one well worthy of emulation and certainly one that lends itself to being used as a splendid example of the ideal office holder.

CLARA L. SMITH, Steuben County Treasurer

The County of Steuben may well boast of a real and worthy official in the person of Clara L. Smith, county treasurer. Her tireless energy and judicious understanding have made her one of the best loved and respected characters in the county's public affairs. Her associate officers are proud to be with her in the service of such a progressive community and her suggestions are carefully weighed by all concerned, for her experience enables her to forsee many things. Tact is a necessary element when dealing with so many people who have business with her department. Public demands are exacting and offtimes very worrisome, especially when not within reason. But with this popular and able official, those wants are considered with that charm of judicious calm possessed in such full measure by Clara L. Smith and if they cannot be supplied satisfactorily rest assured that it was through no lack of effort on her part. She is one who likes to be where responsibility is thickest and the problems seem the deepest. There you can find her working actively and enjoying it. One must love one's work to be able to do that and loving one's work means being a real student which in turn results in the highest proficiency.

H. WARD TIMMERMAN, Deputy County Clerk of Steuben Co.

H. Ward Timmerman holds the important office of Deputy County Clerk in Steuben County because he has the ability, of course, but also because he has the right kind of character. The citizens of Steuben County have little to complain of when such men are made the recipient of such honors, since their work shows that they deserve them. It has not been an easy sinecure path to snapdom that Mr. Timmerman has been following all these years. His work has plenty of rough corners and steep places which only a carefully trained man would care to encounter, let alone try to get the better of. But herein lies the merit of all Mr. Timmerman does. He is thorough and conscientious. His duties have been performed ably and the citizens interested in their community are learning the inwardness of this efficiency. Mr. Timmerman is an excellent man for almost any responsibility and it is to be hoped that he will continue in his present office as his work is strenous and he works with unflagging zeal to brink about results that are constructive and satisfying and is always on hand to answer a call when needed to further the growth and development of his community. Mr. Timmerman has been in this office since 1892.

DR. A. L. DARLING, City Physician of Corning

There is an element of good cheer and helpfulness in every act in the life of Dr. A. L. Darling, City Physician of Corning. He is a physician who will merit the more than passing mention we herewith choose to give him. He is the kind of physician who inspires his patients with confidence. No member of the medical fraternity in this community is more deservedly popular. Medicine alone does not absorb all his interests in life. He is a man who likes to mingle with the people and take his part as a public spirited citizen. We find him a member of various clubs and associations, but he is more interested in being a humanitarian. Pleasant, yet persevering. Dr. Darling has made himself indispensable in most spheres of usefulness by his talents and devotion to duty. He is a physician who keeps abreast of all the latest developments in the science of medicine, therapeutics, psychology and other essential branches of the materia medica. Dr. Darling's duties keep him closely confined to the demands of his patients. A genial man whose good humor and smiles are medicine themselves; his personality conveys him into a realm not ordinarily reached. Dr. Darling is indeed one of our ablest physicians and a worthwhile citizen.

HON. HOLLAND B. WILLIAMS, City Judge of Corning

Judge Holland B. Williams' record proves clearly that he was placed in his present important encumbency on merit rather than mere partisanship. He has for years been prominently known in legal circles as one of the foremost attorneys in Corning. He is also famed by virtue of his many achievements leading to the public good and welfare. Since he has been on the bench he has given further evidence of the fair and broad judgment which comes only to those who have a keen knowledge of human nature. With men like Judge Williams officiating in the municipal judiciary, justice in the city of Corning has been expedited and not permitted to clog the wheels of the higher courts. A multitude of cases have stopped there, settled by prompt and fair decision on the part of Judge Williams which would otherwise have involved an expenditure of large amounts of city funds. In that respect Judge Williams has rendered his community an invaluable service. His court has stood him in good stead in the performance of his large responsibilities. Moreover he has proved conclusively that he has never forgotten that "public office is a public trust." No one could be more civic spirited and actively demonstrate the fact that is true of Judge Williams and we are glad to mention him in our special feature column.

CLARENCE H. BRISCO, Rep. Cand. for State Committeeman

City Attorney Clarence H. Brisco has seen fit to engage himself in that branch of law which deals with the public-at-large and he is prominent in the city administration of Corning as an expert in connection with this branch of public service. This interest which is even deeper than the ordinary kind in civic affairs, is made even more remarkable by the fact that he can give the city the benefit of his deep knowledge in aiding its municipal government as city attorney. He is serving in that office in a manner that is eliciting the praise of all concerned. Mr. Brisco is Republican candidate for the office of State Committeeman in the 1st Assembly District of Steuben County. He is well known in Steuben County where he has always worked indefatigably and unselfishly for community betterment. Among those whom he has met in business or in politics, he enjoys a reputation for trustworthiness and zeal, a reputation that has not come in a day, nor by any accident or streak of luck. It is the direct result of his life and how he has lived it. Attorney Brisco has been engaged for a number of the outstanding cases in the county and he has a very extensive and lucrative surrogate's work and his petition for office of State Committeeman has heartily been endorsed and signed by over one thousand voters.

STERLING COLE, Rep. Cand. for Congressional Nomination

Perhaps nowhere as in the law do the versatile talents with which man may be endowed come to light. The problems which daily confront him are so varied and divers in their nature that they accomplish what no training school for the intellect could hope to do, and develop in the man such keenness and readiness to cope with any situation that may arise. Such a man attains through the sheer momentum of his own progress, heights to which a man in a more commercial sphere, may not aspire. Among the lawyers in Steuben County, coming under the above classification, may be mentioned the name of Sterling Cole of Bath, as one who stands out conspicuously in his profession. The news, therefore, that Sterling Cole is a candidate for Congressional Nomination in the 37th District comes as interesting news indeed. The entire community knows that he is well fitted for any position requiring high executive ability, resourcefulness and honesty; and it is not surprising that influential leaders of Steuben County are solidly behind his candidacy. The leaders of both political parties realize that the lawyer is the ideal representative of the voter, through the experience he gains in defending the rights of his clients, and Attorney Cole is among the foremost lawyers of the county. He is well and favorably known in Addison as he grew to manhood in this town and has a host of friends who are interested in his success. He has our best wishes in the campaign.

MALCOM B. MOSHIER, Rep. Cand. for Comm. of Pub. Welfare

That Malcom B. Moshier's announced candidacy for the office of Commissioner of Public Welfare in Steuben County is meeting with popular approval is well exemplified on all sides by the expressions uttered enthusiastically in his praise. We all know the life and character of Mr. Moshier is such as to command the commendation of everyone vitally interested in the welfare and standing of the community. He is not only a man of good heart but also of generous purposes. He has never harbored malice and one usually finds a smile on his face, a kind word on his lips and a warm clasp in his handshake; and the best part is that all of these things are genuine and not affected. Mr. Moshier has a host of friends because he is himself a friend in the original meaning of the word, generous, kindly and warm hearted in his associations and in his disposition. He is an extremely intense man, in work or in play, and coupled with his intenseness is a fixedness of mind and a tenacity of purpose that enables him to successfully accomplish almost any task which he chooses to undertake. When once embarked on an undertaking, Mr. Moshier is tireless; his great energy transforming him into a host in himself, in its behalf. Mr. Moshier is indeed a splendid man to fill the office of Comm. of Public Welfare and few indeed would care to argue that point. It is, in fact, a privilege to have such a candidate in the field.

HON. EDWIN S. BROWN, County Judge of Steuben Co.

A leading figure in legal advance in Steuben County is Judge Edwin S. Brown whose activities have carried him to a high position in the professon. Judge Brown is widely known in the state and he has made a worthy record on the bench and is also prominent in fraternal circles and is one of the prominent citizens of the county. He has demonstrated on the bench a wide vision of life and a deep feeling of responsibility towards his fellowmen. He displays also the conservative judicial spirit which counts far more than the immediate present, as an influence for the correction and reformation of transgressors who come under his decisions. Both at the bar and on the bench Judge Brown has won distinction throughout the county, both for his forensic ability and his legal acumen, and during the years which he has been professionally active he has made his name one of marked significance to the people of the community. Today the many responsiblities incident to his judgeship, keep him fully occupied. He is a thoroughly representative figure in the great fraternity of the present day, and for sound judgment and professional learning that amounts almost to legal erudition, Judge Brown has no peer in the entire state.

VICTORY STRING IS STRETCHED TO 10 STRAIGHT GAMES

Hickey's Sharp Rap Brings Conquest Over Mansfield; Hewson Paces Local Sluggers to Victory at Post

Grange Bests Kelley, Ex-Leaguer, in Sensational Hurling Duel—J. Grange and Riker in Flashy Double Play—Lefty Flynn, Southpaw Curve Artist, Holds Redoubtable Rand Team to Two Earned Runs in First Full Game With Vas's Cast.

Heads-up baseball, air-tight pitching and a Hickey field day gave the Addison Tri-County League team a hard-earned victory over Mansfield on the high school diamond last Friday afternoon. It was the ninth conquest in a row for Vassie's men.

The home town ensemble committed errors of commission —four of them, in fact—but none of omission. They outsmarted their south section opponents and this was one important factor in bringing home the bacon. Don Grange, twirling ace of the Addison nine, was stingy with hits at all stages and seven assorted bingles were all that the over-the-border boys were able to collect. Phil Hickey and brother Charles provided the offensive firewarks, a sizzling drive by the Fordham Flash in the late seventh sending two runners over the plate, two markers up on the scoreboard and another victim up on the heap. Frank Kelley, late professional leaguer, was in the box for Mansfield and pitched bang-up ball all along the route. For a time it looked as if the afternoon had been preordained as the Kelley's day of destiny, but this was before the Hickeys had completed their chores. In addition to his crushing drive which turned the tide of victory in the seventh, Phil rapped a timely two-bagger earlier in the game which gave him an average of .500 for the day, and Charles chalked up an impressive double to register .333. Defensively, they romped at random in all directions, smearing hard-hit balls which seemed ticketed for distant parts. It was a gala day for the Hickeys!

Rice, first up for Mansfield in the first inning, tapped a hot grounder through the pitcher's box which eluded Hewson at second by a narnor margin. Brace was out on an infield play. F. Kelley laid down another grounder and was ruled safe on the tail end of an attempted double play. Schlappi nicked one of Grange's shoots and Robbins gathered it in handily as it came down in front of the plate. Bailey was out, Hewson to Hargrave. Hewson, first up for Addison, received a free ticket and stole second without sliding a moment later. Phil Hickey was out, but Heidrick was safe on first when an infield play was diverted in a futile attempt to catch Hewson at third. Smart base running carried the Addison field captain over the plate with the first run of the game. J. Grange fanned and Young was out, Bailey to Baynes.

Lutes flied to Charles Hickey, starting the second inning. Baynes laid down an infield bounder which Hargrave scooped up easily and the runner was put out at first. Shaw propelled a burning bounder toward third on which Piper Heidrick made a beautiful stop and throw. Charles Hickey was retired when Bailey ran over back of the scoreboard to tab a high foul. Hargrave grounded to the pitcher's box and Robbins went out, Bailey to Baynes.

B. Kelley got life when Hargrave, running diagonally backward, dropped a high fly. Rice pushed a safety into short left and Brace rapped a hot liner between first and second. F. Kelley's grounder took a bad bound and escaped Young's hard try, two runs going over for the Pennsylvanians. Schlappi flied to right. Bailey socked a fast one along the right foul line to score Kelley. Lutes was thrown out, Hewson to Hargrave. Don Grange, up for Addison, smashed a double to left. Hewson popped to the pitcher. Phil Hickey pushed a two-bagger over the right field fence and against the high school wall. Grange scored on the clout. Bailey made a wonderful running catch to retire Heidrick. After smacking a tremendous blow far out along the left field chalk line, which was ruled foul on close decision, John Grange was called back to th plate and finally retired via the strike-out route. It was now Mansfield 3, Addison 1.

To start the fourth Baynes was returned to the bench on strikes. Young to Hargrave turned the trick on Shaw. Heidrick, in a brilliant effort, leaped into the air and knocked down B. Kelley's drive which had all the earmarks of a two-bagger plus. John Grange sprinted in to make a shoestring catch of Rice's rap toward left. Young, for Addison, received a free ticket. Schleppi galloped back of third to smear C. Hickey's liner. Shaw's deadly throw headed off Young's attempted theft of second. Riker, relieving Hargrave, was out, F. Kelley to Baynes.

Brace flied to right as the fifth got underway and F. Kelley's promising hoist to deep center was speared by Phil Hickey's trusty glove. Schleppi fanned on three pitched balls. Robbins, for Addison, dropped a Texas Leaguer over third and Don Grange's sacrifice advanced him to second. Hewson grounded to the pitcher's box and Phil Hickey to short.

Riker threw a chill into the spines of the Addison fans when he momentarily dropped a low throw from the pitcher's box to retire Bailey. He recovered in the nick of time. Charles Hickey, doing a land-office business in right, tucked Lute's drive into his glove. Baynes was safe when Don Grange muffed a high fly coming down from the stratosphere. Shaw was out at first. Heidrick, for Addison, flied to Lutes. John Grange socked the missle square on the nose and only a rare showing of speedy footwork and nifty mitwork upon the part of Baynes, running backward in deep right center, sent the Addison slugger back to the bench minus a homer. Young grounded out.

Heidrick and Riker cooperated in a beautiful play which converted B. Kelley's threatening drive into a putout at the start of the seventh. Rice was out on an infield play, but Brace laced a short tap to the right sector. Fran Kelley's burning bounder twisted through Young's legs and Schlappi lifted an infield fly which Heidrick lost in the sun. John Grange gathered in Bailey's blow to left to retire the side. C. Hickey, for Addison, was awarded a free transport. Pop Riker rose to the occasion and drove a hot liner between first and second. Maurice Robbins laid down a slow, teasing roller toward first which F. Kelley and Baynes both started to cover, but in the ensuing confusion neither did. The bases were now loaded and it was the zero hour for Vassie's beleaguered thumpers. Don Grange whiffed. Captain Hewson fouled out. Two were gone and hopes of the home folks were ebbing fast. Up came the speedy, spirited Fordham barrister, keen of eye and grim of countenance. With the count at one and two, Kelley dished a morsel which looked wholesome to the resourceful P. K. Connecting squarely, he drove a hard, low liner to left center and two eager Addison runners scampered to safety over the plate. It was now Addison four, Mansfield 3. What mattered it that Heidrick whiffed on three pitched balls a moment later?

Lutes, first up for Mansfield to start the seventh, bounced an easy roller which Riker ensnared with little ado. Baynes lifted a determined fly to deep center but all to no avail as the ball found recess in Hickey's glove as he leaped like a scared jack rabbit back in no man's land. Young made a fine recovery and splendid throw to retire Shaw. John Grange fanned for Addison but Young was awarded a free ticket. Charles Hickey lifted his hickory with force and determination and the sphere rebounded to scarcely settled parts. Riker swung—and thrice he swung—with all he had, but couldn't connect. Then something happened. Shaw had dopped the third strike and the embattled Pop tore for first like a bull at a red blanket. He was thrown out, of course, but the Addison brain trust had imposed no restrictions upon the production of runs for its tally sheet. Chan Young, the Presho speed merchant, dashed for home, his take-off synchronizing with Shaw's toss to first. The talented young educator's toe touched the plate a split second before the horsehide resounded in the catcher's mit. A stocky white-shirted figure shifted his repose at the end of the Addison bench and smiled preceptibly. His charges were now two to the good. Robbins was thrown out at first to retire the side.

Kelley lined out to the pitcher's box. Rice connected for a Texas Leaguer. Brace propelled the apple to a seemingly vacant tract in left center, but he failed to reckon on the instinctiveness of that stern old ball hawk, J. Grange. Snatching the liner close to the turf, the agile guardian of the sun section was again on his pins and a speeding projectile was burning its way to doubled-up Rice, loose from the bag at first. It was a perfect peg, a perfect play and a perfect day for grizzled ball fans.

Addison vs. Painted Post

Addison journeyed down to Painted Post Sunday and added an easy victory to their growing string of consecutive victories by taking the Ingersoll-Rand representatives in the Tri-County League into camp by the liberal count of 12 to 4. Addison started off scoring in the first and never left any doubt in the minds of anyone as to what the result would be. Led by Hewson with four hits and three stolen bases, a clean steal of home being among them, Addison belabored Decker, the Painted Post boxman for 18 safe drives, stole nine bases and generally tired themselves out or they would probably have been scoring yet. The victory was especially sweet as the locals have had a lot of trouble beating the Post boys this year. Johnny Flynn did the pitching for the Addison outfit and working easily behind a nice comfortable lead was never in danger. The Addison High School boy worked like a veteran. In four of the nine innings but three men faced him. The Rand men for the most part had to be content to send easy rollers down to the fast functioning Addison infield, which was working smoothly. Catches by Hickey and Dineen and a fine stop by Heidrick were the high lights. Flynn engineered a fast double killing and Riker pulled one all by himself for the last two outs of the game. Grange crowded Hewson for the batting honors with a double and two singles.

Safe drives by Hewson, Hickey and Heidrick sent Addison away in the lead and singles by Grange and Hewson with a neat sacrifice by Robbins between counted another in the second. Hadlock, Young and Grange accounted for two in the third and things were looking up. Addison kept right on adding runs in every inning of the game but two. Painted Post broke the ice in the fourth, added another in the fifth and two in the sixth, before Flynn took things into his own hands and engineered a double killing to end their efforts. This put the Rand men within three runs of Addison but that was the closest they ever got, to the flying visitors. Riker made a nice play by ending the game with his two-ply killing in the ninth, when the Post thought they were starting a rally, although eight runs behind.

Westfield Here This Sunday

Zerfluhs, Old Time Favorites, To Lead Invasion of Tuscarora Field By Colorful Troupe of Diamond Partisans.

Westfield will be the attraction at Tuscarora Field next Sunday, August 26, and that always means something doing. The Westfield boys, headed by the noted Zerfluh brothers, may be quite well down in the standing of the league, but they are always out there fighting to the last ditch and then some. Addison has the edge on the Tanners of two games to one for the season and that will make them all the more anxious to win Sunday. The Addison team is going great guns. They have not lost a league game since the fore part of July and up to yesterday had a winning streak of ten straight games. Addison fans have been slow in realizing that the team merits all kinds of support, but the large number of Addisonites at Painted Post last Sunday to see the locals give the Ingersoll-Rand team a real beating would indicate a big crowd at the field next Sunday.

Cushing, the Westfield pitching ace will doubtless face Addison Sunday, with Moore behind the bat, Pete Zerfluh on first, Leipold on second, Ed Zerfluh at short and Schoonover at third. Pat Weidman, White, John Zerfluh, Paddock and Faulkner are all outfielders with powerful bats and round out a fast, hard hitting team, that is sure to give Addison a hard fight.

Don Grange, who has pitched Addison to two victories over the Tanners this year will probably do the boxwork with Lefty Flynn in reserve for emergencies Robbins or Kellogg will catch, while Young, Heidrick, Hewson, Hickey and Riker will be in the infield and J. Grange, Riffle, Hadlock and Hoyt for outfielding. The Addison team has been hitting the ball hard in their last few starts, making 18 clean drives at Painted Post last week, and can be depended on to make things lively for the Tanners pitching staff.

This will be the last Tri-County League game on the Addison grounds this season. Addison still has three games to play in the league, but they are all on foreign diamonds, after the Sunday game here. A big crowd should greet the winning team on their last home appearance in league competition this season.

Bloomer Girls To Oppose Aces

Female Champions to Play Bob Drake's Little Six Leaguers on Jasper Diamond This Saturday.

The New York Bloomer Girls baseball, undefeated female champions of the East, will clash with the Jasper Aces at Maple Ball Park, Jasper, this Saturday afternoon. A capacity crowd is expected.

The Bloomer Girls are undefeated champions of the East since 1910. They have traveled through 30 states in this country and Canada since the team has been under their present manager, Miss Margaret Nabel. During the past twenty years, the team has had only two managers, and Miss Nabel has handled the club since 1919. Every team of any consequence within a 100-mile radius of New York has at some time presented the girls to their fans, and many of the fans follow the team around to their various games. Many home teams book the female favorites each season, and sometimes twice during the year. Fans will see a really interesting, fast, closely - contested game, as a first-class attraction is guaranteed, a team of star girl players and local fans are assured that Miss Nabel's team will give satisfaction.

Every athlete of consequence in the metropolitan district is asked to join this club, and all five boroughs of New York City are represented. While such stars as Hattie Michaels, Mel Pearsall, Babe McCuttun, Ginger Robinson, Mary Ontek and Alma Pucci are assured regulars, there is always a new crop of 'rookies' on the way up, to step into the first opening. There are more than 40 on the roster of the Bloomer Girls, assuring a good active team at all times, with a wealth of material to select from.

Fans will marvel at the work of this club—the girls can field and throw, bat and run bases, and know what to do with the ball when they get it They are well-coached, and know the game from every angle. The girls always draw a record turnout, and are proud of this fact, but the thing which pleases Manager Margaret Nabel most is the fine reputation her girls enjoy from Nova Scotia clear down to Texas, and all states between. She has had the girls to all sections, and is proud of the splendid reputation her attraction enjoys.

Aces Pound Out Win Over Woodhull To Sew Up First Half Championship

Drake Limits Invincibles to Two Safe Blows in First Seven Innings—Daily Pitches Well, But Support is Undependable — Cady, for Losers, Stars at Bat and Afield—Woodhull, Jasper, Whitesville, Win Sunday Games.

Superlative boxwork coupled with unfaltering support in the field featured the play of the Jasper Aces as they coasted to victory over the Woodhull Invincibles, 12 to 6, in a play-off battle at Maple Ball Park near Jasper last Saturday afternoon. With the play-off safely tucked away the Aces became undisputed first-half champions of the Little Six.

Bob Drake, who took up the pitching burden for the Jasper nine in this all-important fray held the Invincibles completely under thumb until the eighth and then with a sizeable lead he was never in danger. To his adversary, Merle Daily, also should go a fair share of the day's glory. Laboring like a Trojan, the veteran Woodhull slabman made the Aces fight it out every inch of the way and had his support not failed at critical stages the outcome would have been in doubt.

The Aces got off to a one-point start in the first inning. Van Skiver rapped out a Texas Leaguer to short left and Waight gained access to the baselines when Elliott juggled his slow roller. Whipple pushed an aggressive grounder to short and on an attempt-force play at the midway station the runner was safe. Bob Drake lifted one convincingly over third and Van Skiver scored but Waight was out at third. Walrath was out, Daily to House. Swan went to first gratis. House hit to Daily and Whipple was nailed speeding for home. Drake got off to an uncertain start in this stanza, issuing free tickets to H. House and Olin. Cady bounced one over first to score House, but Olin was run down near third. Elliott accepted a gratuity to first. Hotaling grounded to short and Cady was thrown out at the plate. Daily grounded to the pitcher's box.

The Aces added three more in the second. Schoonover was hit, Burdette Drake tapped to the box and the former was headed off at the midway station. A throw from catcher to first went wide enabling Drake to advance. Van Skiver flied out to Hargrave and Drake came home on a high peg over second. Waight's grounder was booted at the hot corner. He stole second and scored when Mosher dropped Whipple's high fly. Bob Drake clouted a two-bagger to left center, bringing Whipple in. Drake was out a moment later, however, in a desperate attempt to embezzle third. Woodhull's half was unproductive, Mosher and Hargrave whiffing and Hallett lifting a pop fly to the pitcher.

Walrath flied out to Cady as the third got underway. Swan hit a roller to first. House laid down a bunt but Hallett's peg was good and Swan was nabbed at second. House shared the same fate a moment later. For Woodhull, Harley House flied to second and Olin grounded to the pitcher's box. Cady got on when Walrath dropped his fly. Elliott received a base on balls and Hotaling was thrown out at first, following his strike-out.

The fourth was also studded with goose-eggs for both aggregations. Schoonover hit over second but Hargrave made a flashy catch of Burdette Drake's drive along the right field foul line. Van Skiver was out, Hotaling to M. House, and Waight flied to left. Daily, for Woodhull, grounded to Waight, Mosher flied to Swan and Hallett was thrown out on an infield play.

Whipple lifted a high fly to the pitcher's box. Bob Drake beat out an infield tap. Walrath hit to right center, advancing Drake to third. In an attempt to nab Drake off the bag, the ball rolled into the grass and the runner scored. House pushed one into the garden, scoring Walrath. Schoonover beat out an infield roller, another runner crossing the plate. Burdette Drake was ruled out in a disputed play at first base as another runner sneaked across the pan. Van Skiver was thrown out, House to Hotaling. Hargrave fanned for the Invincibles and H. House and Olin both rolled to R. Drake.

House and Hotaling had swapped positions for Woodhull. Elliott's throw was wide on Waight's grounder. Whipple bounded out and Cady made a nice running catch of Bob Drake's drive to the outfield. Walrath hit safely to score Waight. Swan grounded to Olin. Schoonover's throw was poor on Cady's rap. Burdette Drake made a wonderful running catch of Elliott's drive to deep right center, Hotaling was safe at first and Cady advanced to third. Daily grounded to short and Cady beat the throw to the plate. Mosher grounded to first and Hotaling scored. Hallett fanned. Score, Jasper 10, Woodhull 3.

House hit safely for Jasper to start the seventh and went to third on a wild throw. Schoonover hit to right center and House scored. Burdette Drake was out at first. Van Skiver lined to right but Schoonover was tagged at the plate. Waight was thrown out by Elliott. For Woodhull, Hargrave went out, Van Skiver to M. House. Harley House flied to short. Olin drew a free ticket and Cady bounced an easy grounder to short.

Whipple was out at first to start the eighth. Bob Drake rapped a clean single between first and second. Drake continued around to third when the Invincibles inner defense started tossing the ball around loosely. A moment later he crossed the plate. Walrath was out and Swan drew a pass. Merle House was retired on a wonderful running catch by Cady in which the flashy Woodhull center fielder dived and came up with the ball. The Invincibles sent two runs across in this session. Elliott beat out a rap to short. Hotaling hit to right, but a nice peg by Hargrave nailed Elliott at second. Daily boosted a hot one over third. Mosher pushed a safety between first and second, and Hotaling scored. Hallett was hit by the pitcher. Hargrave hit to right, Mosher and Daily coming home. House was retired on a toss from second.

The ninth was uneventful. Schoonover fanned. Burdette Drake grounded to second and Van Skiver lined to the same spot. For the Invincibles, Olin lifted a high fly to Waight, Cady was hit by the pitcher but was thrown out in an attempted steal. Elliott drew a pass but Hotaling whiffed and the game was over. Final: Aces 12, Invincibles 6.

JASPER 12, TROUPSBURG 11

Not satisfied with trimming the Woodhull Invincibles on Saturday afternoon for the first half championship of the Little Six, the Aces continued their ravaging ways by stampeding to victory over the Troupsburg Tigers, 12 to 11, in a sensational ninth inning finish, on Sunday afternoon.

The Aces were off to a poor start and the edge seemed decidely in favor of Troupsburg for several innings. The Tigers released a number of heavy volleys early in the engagement, sending one run across in the first and five in the second. Stone set the pace for the Tigers with two triples, a double and a single in five trips to the plate. Burdette Drake paced the Aces with four hits and three runs in five times up.

Whipple also wielded a wicked willow, driving out a double in the fourth and tying the score with a timely bingle to deep left in the ninth. Burdette Drake started the fireworks with a Texas Leaguer over second. Van Skiver drove a hot liner through shortstop and went to second when the play was made for Drake at third. Waight struck out and Whipple poked the ball into deep left field, Drake scoring on the play. Moore then won his own game by dropping a short tap into right and bringing in Van Skiver.

Republicans:

Mr. Campbell, at last, states that he favors guaranteeing the safety of bank deposits. Apparently his associates have been counting noses. Mr. Campbell is looking for votes and the average voter senses that the retention of this law will have an important bearing on his future security and peace of mind.

It is too late for Mr. Campbell, or for that matter, Mr. Cole or the Rev. Woolever, to capitalize on this issue. For weeks they temporized, hesitant and bewildered. Now, at last, Mr. Campbell is smoked out! He favors it, he says; but he is careful to insert some ifs and ands.

Voters, don't be fooled! You know where Barron stands. He has emphasized this issue from the beginning. His stand is contingent upon no ifs or ands.

for no better reason than the possibility of drawing a Congressional salary check. As for Mr. Campbell, he has seemingly become so obsessed with the idea of holding office that he now wants a five-county decoration. . . . Further Mr. Campbell has stated tonight that he is in favor of the law guaranteeing the safety of bank deposits. He also states that all the banks are in favor of this law. It seems very late in the day for him to make such a statement when he has been repeatedly asked over a period of weeks to state his position, but up to now has consistently failed to do so.

"Evidently, Mr. Campbell has arrived at a belated appreciation of public opinion and its relation to this law in terms of votes. In plain words, he has been smoked out. Let me emphasize, it is too late for Mr. Campbell to capitalize on the bank insurance issue in this campaign. I question if he would have broken silence, either now or later, had not the emphasis which I have placed upon the urgent need of retaining this law focussed public attention upon its merits and aroused public consciousness to the danger which it faces from powerful interests.

"And what is more, if I must say so, I question the sincerity of his statement endorsing this law. You have heard him explain the intricicies of high finance and his allusion to the conflict of the bank insurance laws with other financial agencies. If he favors this law, he apparently does so reluctantly and only in deference to public opinion while the campaign is on. Whatever Mr. Campbell's stand may be, my stand is this—if other agencies conflict with the guarantee of bank deposits law, then repeal or alter these other agencies but leave the guarantee of bank deposits law alone."

to denomination, and cited the various church groups from which the various officials of the organization are recruited, to prove that the organization has a common inter-denominational interest.. "I believe that because we are a Christian organization we try to bring out the best in ourselves and in others," said Mrs. Colvin. "Many women have first learned to pray through their attendance at our meetings. . . . . Many women have attained confidence in themselves through the W. C. T. U."

"With repeal effected, what is the future course of action?" the speaker asked. She answered by saying, "What were we organized for? We were organized to unite our Christian women for the final extinction of the liquor traffic . . . . One obect is to work up sentiment in temperance work. With the liquor traffic back with all its undercurrents, certainly some organization is needed to counter-act its influence."

Mrs. Colvin deplored that many people, even ministers of the gospel, had refrained from using their influence to outlaw liquor. Pointing out a notable exception, the minister of a large and wealthy congregation in New York City, the speaker explained that when he came to the congregation, ten years ago, many of the men of his church did not believe in prohibition and a great many of them were not even total abstainers, and this despite the fact that it was a Methodist congregation. Through this minister's influence, however, practically every man is now not only a total abstainer but a firm believer in prohibition, and Mrs. Colvin expressed a belief that the same results could be obtained in all communities if the pastors in charge dealt wth the matter properly.

"It is our work, women, to build up sentiment for the temperance cause," Mrs. Colvin said. "Our organization is primarily interested in the young people because their habits are not yet formed. . . . . If the parents of our coming generation are not willing to guide them through the habit-forming period, someone must," she said.

Asserting that repeal had not brought the promised benefits and that the liquor interests could not be trusted to observe laws or regulations of any kind, Mrs. Colvin continued: "All the liquor people care about is to create an appetite to make money. Candy containing liquor is being sold to children. Abuses of repeal have moved high minded Wets to warn against the consequences. Only a few weeks ago Senator Walsh, speaking on the floor o fthe United States senate, had this to say: 'Unless these things are corrected, prohibition will come back and if and when it comes again it will stay'."

Mrs. Colvin emphasized that prohibition was defeated by a vote of only one-fourth of those who usually take the trouble to go to the polls. "Whatever the reason that prohibition was defeated, I insist, nevertheless, that it was defeated by nothing more than a majority of a minority," the speaker contended "Even with its difficulties, prohibition did more good for the people of this country than repeal has done since or than license did before." Mrs. Colvin then denounced the action of the administration in Washington in bringing pressure to bear in bringing about repeal and the failure of preceding administrations during the prohibition regime to use the power which was theirs to bring about proper enforcement. "It was the power of the national administration, used as a club over officials everywhere, that had much to do with getting rid of prohibition", she said, and she then explained that the governor of a midwestern state, upon coming to Washington to ask for relief funds, was told that none would be forthcoming unless he went back home and immediately called for a referendum ballot on the question of prohibition repeal. "Our government itself has shown us what power it had and what it could do to bring about repeal in the hands of a determined administration, but we didn't have the benefit of a similar determination, used as a club, to enforce the law when prohibition was in effect. Every president of the United States during the period of prohibition had the same power to use in bringing about enforcement that our present president has had in bringing about repeal, but they did not choose to do so. . . . . Prohibition is coming back. It is the Drys that will bring it back but it is the Wets who will ask for it." The speaker then explained that a swing of sentiment back to prohibition was already in effect, that present regulations were not being enforced, that abuses were greater than ever; and she quoted Mr. Choate, of the federal liquor authority, as saying that we have as much illegal liquor now as under prohibition.

"We knew all these things would come," Mrs. Colvin stated. "It is no surprise to us. The only attitude possible to us is that of prohibition. If the politicians thought they were going to get it out of politics, they will find that they have only put it back into politics," the speaker concluded.

The meeting was called to order by Miss Hazel Space of the Addison union. Two verses of "Onward Christian Soldiers" were sung by the assembly. A scriptural reading from the sixth chapter of Ephesians, verses 10 to 18, was given by Mrs. Clarence Whitmore. A poem was read by Mrs. Elizabeth Taber, written by her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Merritt of Springfield, Mass., who was for many years president of the W. C. T. U. in that community. The poem was written just prior to Mrs. Merritt's 90th birthday on December 7th last.

Frank Buck Brings More Thrills With "Wild Cargo" Film

From more than 100,000 feet of film, the salient footage covering Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) Buck's thrilling jungle exploits was edited into a sensational-packed motion picture, "Wild Cargo", produced for RKO-Radio by the Van Buren Corporation. The film will be seen at the Avon Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"Wild Cargo", based on the book of the same name by Buck written in collaboration with Edward S. Anthony, follows Buck through the Asiatic jungles as he hunts rare wild animals to execute orders from zoos. Two photographers with still and motion picture cameras followed Buck every move and succeeded in recording scenes depicting the hazards which attended him as he sought his prey.

Buck faced death twice and almost approached a point of never seeing himself on the screen in "Wild Cargo". Both encounters were with snakes. Once a thirty-foot python wound about his right arm. On another occasion a king cobra cornered. Buck. Only his experience enabled him to cope with the situations.

The ingenious traps of the famous wild animal collector are shown in "Wild Cargo". Through Buck's clever employment of one of these devices, flying foxes of which is made a variety of stew, a jungle delicacy, was a neat operation. Buck assembled a rectangular net on two long poles. As a large number of flying foxes were stampeded from a tree, native boys hoisted the net and enwrapped the birds.
